

BEING A MISSIONARY CHURCH TODAY

Lessons from the Life of Pauline Jaricot.

In this talk, Fr Brian Lucas, the national director of Catholic Mission, will discuss contemporary perspectives on the meaning of mission. Drawing inspiration from Blessed Pauline Jaricot, founder of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith, he will explore the connections between historical missionary activities, colonial expansion, and the challenges faced by many countries and cultures today. Additionally, based on his recent book, "Collaborators in Ministry: A Guide for Lay People and Clergy," Fr Lucas will address the collaborative efforts of lay individuals and clergy in advancing the church's missionary work.

Father Brian Lucas is a priest of the Archdiocese of Sydney ordained in 1980. He has held parish appointments and was Archdiocesan Secretary (1990 – 2002) and General Secretary of the Australian Catholic Bishops Conference (2002 – 2015). He is currently the National Director of Catholic Mission and a member of the finance council of the Pontifical Mission Societies. For 20 years he authored the question answer column in the Catholic Weekly. He is a co-author of The Church Administration Handbook and author of Pleasing to God: The Call to Church Administration and Collaborators in Ministry: A Guide for Lay People and Clergy
